CALL FOR POSTERS

The International Performance, Computing, and Communications Conference is a premier IEEE conference presenting both theoretical and experimental research in the performance of computer and communication systems. Included in this year's conference is a poster session where researchers can present their preliminary or in-progress work. The poster session is an excellent opportunity for researchers to discuss their work and receive feedback from a community of experienced researchers. Students are also encouraged to submit their graduate thesis work to the poster session.
